Not illustrated. 1907 Excerpt: . . . the original manuscript--for besides this he had nothing more than a few meagre sketches of the work--he asked his friend Faisst to find for him, through Zumpe, a reliable copyist in Stuttgart, who was to have a seat in Faissts office and there copy the manuscript sheet by sheet as it was given him, but was on no account to take any of it home. He was to refrain from making any pencil marks on the manuscript, and he was to be careful not to approach it with unwashed hands--an amusing sidelight on the normal ways of the German musiccopyist. Faisst made the desired arrangements for him, though the copying did not proceed so quickly as Wolf desired. He had given Faisst the second, third and fourth Acts, retaining the first in order to score it. So rapidly did he do this that he had finished...
